Council agrees to study

A study to determine the extent of potential flooding if a serious rainstorm caused the Gull River to overflow its banks will be undertaken in the Minden area. The Anson, Hindon and Minden township council agreed to the study at the October 28 meeting.

The agreement to undertake the engineering study was taken after officials from the Ministry of Natural Resources indicated they would object to the provisions in the township's new zoning by-law which marks only a limited area as potential flood zone. The MNR spokesman, Warren Evershad, appeared with Minden District Manager, Don White, Brian O'Donague of the MNR Huntsville office and Bruce Kitchen of the Trent-Severn waterway system.

Kitchen had been asked to attend the meeting because his agency controls numerous dams along the Gull watershed. Kitchen said the authority controlled its dams by reacting to local conditions and the needs of the Trent Canal system. He pointed out however, that once all the reservoir lakes and rivers are full throughout the system there is little the authority can do to control the flow of water. "We can reduce flooding in one area but the result usually means flooding is more serious elsewhere," he commented. Kitchen said this created a "dicey situation."

Councillor Ed Pergolas told the representatives the tone of their arguments had indicated the village would be "wiped off the map". He told those present, "we'll fight tooth and nail to keep this a viable community."

O'Donague said the engineering study would be necessary to determine the extent of the flooding and give some indication of the steps needed to protect life and property in the municipality. Evershad commented that while the provincial government policy was meant to offer a certain level of protection to the citizens of the province, it in no way was intended to "close down" a community. He pointed out there were special provisions in the policy which allowed development to continue, perhaps with precautions being taken.

The question of dredging the river to increase its capacity was also discussed. However, it was pointed out this course of action could be very expensive and have limited impact. Kitchen was questioned about a possible blockage in the Gull Lake south of here which might hamper the flow of water through the system. He said that while the Trent-Severn authorities were aware of some ridge or blockage in the lake, there had been no investigation as to its extent or location.

A number of residents of the community were on hand to express their concern over the new designation of hazard land in the village area. They said the new zoning could make their property worthless and leave those who have invested a great deal of money in this community with nothing. A suggestion was made that dredging might be the answer. An objection was also raised to the term 'hazard' land. It was felt the connotation created a negative impression to those unfamiliar with the true nature of the hazard. It was suggested that terms referring to the possibility of flooding might be more appropriate.

Before the discussion ended, the council agreed to take advantage of a special grant under the Canada-Ontario Flood Protection Program. Under the program engineers will determine the extent of flooding the area could expect.

The council hoped to have the program approved as quickly as possible to speed the aerial photography which must be completed before the snow falls or the trees leaf-out in the spring.

Only two firemen respond to alarm-home destroyed

Only two members of the Minden Fire Department and one piece of fire-fighting equipment responded to a fire Tuesday morning which completely destroyed the home of Bess and Fred Cox on the Bat Lake Road in Minden Township.

There was very little the two firemen could do to save the home as the pumper truck contained only 500 gallons of water. Efforts to bring the blaze under control proved fruitless and the water supply was quickly exhausted.

Two other members of the brigade arrived on the scene as the walls of the home collapsed. One of the firemen who initially arrived on the scene returned to the firehall and came back to the blaze with the tanker truck.

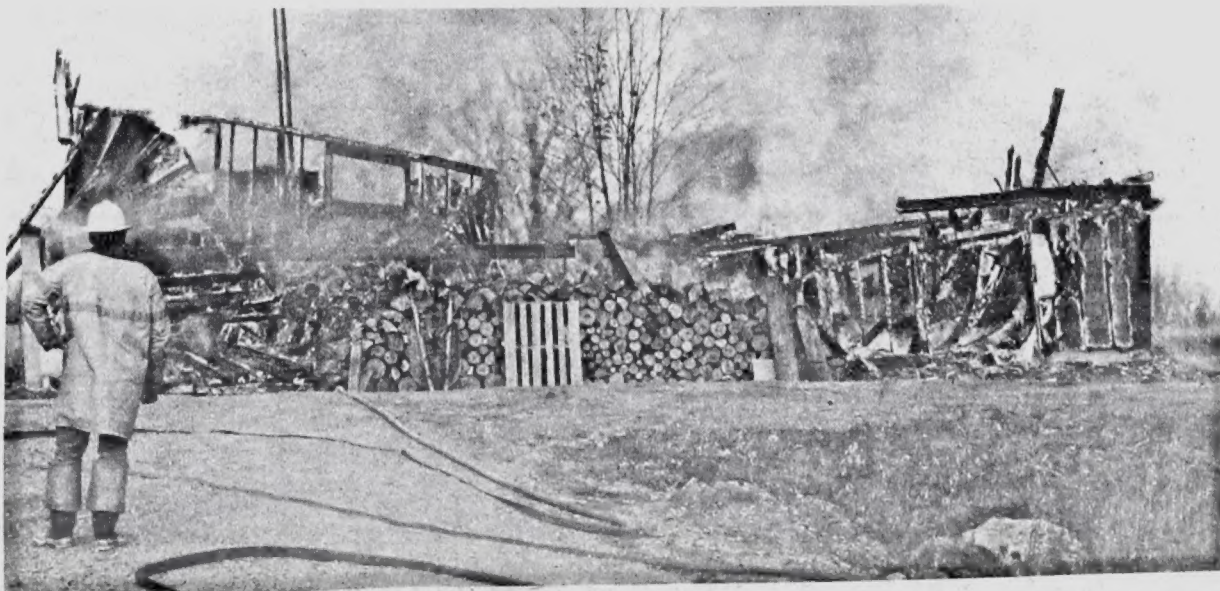

However, by then all that was left was to allow the blaze to burn itself out.

Efforts by neighbours of the couple to raise other members of the brigade in town were ineffective. An explanation offered by one person on the scene was that many of the firemen were away from Minden, deer hunting.

The blaze is believed to have started in the second storey of the two floor home, near a wood stove. The Minden Brigade was notified by a neighbour who noticed smoke and flames at the Cox residence.

According to the owners, the house was insured. No value has been placed on the

With the supply of water exhausted, there was nothing the firemen could do but watch the walls of a house on the Bat Lake road collapse into ashes. The home was newly built this year.

Two retiring trustees of the Haliburton County Board of Education were guests of honour Wednesday at a supper sponsored by the local chapter of the Ontario Men's Public School Teachers' Federation. The trustees, Earl Cooper of West Guilford and Lloyd Johnson of Minden, centre, talk with teachers Gareth Kellett, left, and Glen Carter, right. The trustees were presented with gifts from the teachers in recognition of their contribution to education in the county.

New policy in taxpayers' interest

A new policy regarding the assessment of a penalty against unpaid taxes has been set by the Anson, Hinds and Minden Township council. The policy was agreed to at the October 28 meeting of the council.

The municipality will now accept without penalty, cheques for taxes up to five days past the due date. The purpose of extending the penalty deadline was to enable the ratepayers to obtain the interest for the money on deposit at the bank, right up to the end of the month.

A resident of the municipality, Bernie Davis, had appeared before council in September requesting the change. She pointed out at that time that only the banks gained if the municipality cashed tax cheques on the last day of the month, when the taxes are due. She said the municipality could help the ratepayers earn the interest for the money on deposit by delaying the cashing of the cheque until the following month.

The five days grace period proposed by the council appear to eliminate that problem.

Councillor Lyle McKnight stated that while the policy will be the one the township follows, it will not be publicized and the due date on the tax notices will remain the end of the month.

Parks policy

Mrs. Davis also requested the council strike a policy for the disposal of municipally owned park land. She said the council was acting without guidelines in the sale of such pieces of property, particularly those which front on area lakes.

Deputy Reeve Doug

Pritchard stated that the sale of land helped raise funds which are used to develop other parcels of park land.

"If, for example, we have five pieces of property on one lake, do you think we should keep them all?" Pritchard asked. "The land may indeed be public, but it is of little use to the public if it isn't developed."

Davis said she was concerned that the council felt the dollar value of the land was more important than the property itself. She asked what the council would use for development money when all the park properties have been sold. She said the council could be subject to pressure from individuals or groups who have a special interest in a particular lake and the council would act in a way which would be detrimental to the other residents of the municipality.

Councillor Ed Pergolas said that one method of ensuring the ratepayers were aware of the land being offered for sale was to announce the proposed sale well in advance to give residents an opportunity to object to the action.

Councillor Lyle McKnight suggested that another method of control would be to have all five members agree to the sale of surplus property before it is placed on the market.

Davis said she felt the council had lost the trust of the public and suggested that better communications might help improve the situation. She said the policy under which the council now decides which lands it will sell is too vague. "This is too important a matter to be guided by a vague policy," she commented.

McKnight countered by stating that the council was an elected body and they must be trusted to make the right decisions.

Reeve Lloyd Walker commented the municipal land is not to be sold without due consideration by the council.

In the end, the council did not settle on a special policy for the sale of municipal property. However, the clerk was instructed to inform Mrs. Davis when a policy is set.

Minden Stedmans has new owner

The Minden Stedmans Store has changed ownership.

Vince Connaughan, operator of the Stedmans Store in Haliburton Village, assumed ownership of the store on Friday of last week. The business was purchased from Jerry Pillsworth.

Connaughan has operated the Haliburton store for several years, expanding the original premises on a number of occasions. Since taking over last week, he and his staff have been busy stocking the shelves of the Minden store in preparation for the Christmas shopping season. "We are fortunate to have a large warehouse of material in Haliburton to draw on," the new owner stated. "Having order filled for the store could take several weeks or more."

The retiring owner of the Minden store was active with the local business community, participating in the Minden Businessmen Association and the BIA. He is also the president of the Minden Agricultural Society, sponsors of the Haliburton County Fair.

Connaughan commented that he was looking forward to serving the needs of Minden and area shoppers.

Brad Robinson makes it more than just a store

"The people who stop here feel it is 'their' store, not mine but their's."

The comment from Brad Robinson, owner-operator of Robinson's General Store, in many ways holds the key to the success of his business in the small community of Dorset. It was that business success, that attitude which he has been able to foster in his regular clientele and one-time visitors which, no doubt, influenced members of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce to name Brad Highlander of the Year.

The honour was presented to the merchant Wednesday at the Chamber's annual meeting. Dorset area Reeve Fred Baum made the presentation on behalf of the Chamber.

In an interview Friday, Brad recalled a number of incidents in the store's history which exemplified the 'customer first' attitude which has made his store a must stop for tourists and 'their' store for seasonal and permanent residents.

He recalls how frustrated the staff would become when his father would spend hours on end talking to the customers, particularly cottagers who visited the store. While the rest of the employees and Brad were left with all the work, his father chatted with the clients. In time Brad came to see that it was the familiarity, the warm welcome and friendly atmosphere which built the bonds of loyalty between the customers and the store.

Brad pauses for a minute during the interview to chat with a hunter who stopped in to pick up a pair of socks.

"During the summer I do much the same thing," he commented. "I spend most of my time greeting customers, talking with them, making them feel welcome." The store employs 30 at the peak of the season.

The welcome feeling has more than paid off for the store which has undergone eight expansions and another is in the works to add more space for hardware items and an ice cream parlour.

The friendly attitude is the store's most important commodity, but close behind is the old time atmosphere.

The Robinsons have made a number of concessions to the modern day such as electronic cash registers, but the store still retains its rustic look and appeal. Inside wood heaters not only harken back to old time general stores, but also help to keep the cost of heating the rambling emporium as low as possible.

"We're one of the few stores in Canada which never stopped selling wood stoves," Brad commented as he pointed out the wood-fired heater which has served the store for years. That is another reason for the store's success. "We often have goods that people just can't find in the city. People come here expecting us to have something which they can't find anywhere else. They usually do find it."

The history of the store dates back to 1906 when a small general store opened across the street. In 1921 the operation was moved to a 50 by 25 foot store at its present location. That old store still forms part of the much expanded emporium.

The store was closed for a number of years during the war as the war effort drained the population of the Ontario frontier. Near the end of the hostilities, the store re-opened and with peace, came increased prosperity. Crown land in Muskoka and Haliburton was being sold for 25¢ a foot frontage and the start of the cottage boom began.

Interestingly, a portion of the business has returned to the west side of the street, where it first started. A separate store selling pine furniture has opened.

The Robinson store has always been a family affair. Brad started in the store in 1956, eventually taking over from his parents, Harry and Marguerite Robinson.

Brad's daughter Joanne is currently attending the University of Western Ontario, studying computer science. Brad would like to see her take over the business someday but is also aware her career choice may not include the Dorset store.

Robinson's General Store has become a landmark in the Haliburton Highlands. Its success is due to a number of factors, not the least of which is the careful management and attention to detail provided by the Robinson family. The award presented to Brad Robinson Wednesday recognizes that fact and his important contribution to the success of business.

The Robinson's General Store is a familiar landmark in Dorset

Fatal accident on Highway 35

One man is dead and another seriously injured following a single car accident late Friday evening.

The mishap, on Highway 35 at the intersection with Highway 121 south, took the life of Victor George, 31, of Bell Ewart. He was the driver of a southbound vehicle which went out of control on a curve and rolled into the ditch.

A passenger in the car, William Thompson, 34, of Holland Landing, sustained major injuries in the accident.

The accident was investigated by Constable Weldon Popp.

Career week at HHSS

HHSS senior students will get a closer look at the working world this week as career week is held at the local high school.

This is the second year the special week has been held.

Students are invited to attend a number of panel discussions in which various aspects of post secondary school education or employment are presented. These include hiring procedures, apprenticeship, university education and job market projections.

On Tuesday the students were able to attend a number of workshops at which speakers from the community representing various professions were on hand to discuss of their jobs.

The four day session concludes Thursday with a banquet at the Legion in Haliburton.

The career week at the high school is sponsored by the Minden and Haliburton Rotary Clubs, the Haliburton Industrial Training Committee, Minden Kinsmen Club, Haliburton County Chamber of Commerce, Canadian Employment Commission, Royal Canadian Legion and Sir Sandford Fleming College.

New system needed

The municipality of Anson, Hindon and Minden should find a better method of contacting members of the community's fire department in emergencies. The need for updating the present system is urgent.

This fact was borne out Tuesday morning when only two members of the local brigade responded to an alarm on the Bat Lake Road. The blaze destroyed the home and its contents while the firefighters and a handful of spectators looked on in frustration.

Backed up by the 500 gallon capacity of the pumper truck, the two firemen could do little more than delay briefly the inevitable destruction of the home.

We must ask, where were the other members of the brigade? Some, it was suggested, were not in the community as the hunting season had started. However, there were others here who could have assisted in the fire suppression efforts and perhaps even saved the home and its contents from total destruction.

We certainly hope that the department's strength was not depleted to such a low level because of the hunting season. If that is indeed the case, then some system should be devised to ensure enough firemen are available at all times of the year to meet emergencies or the size of the fire brigade should be expanded to ensure a strong contingent is always on hand.

But, more importantly, a long hard look should be taken at the method of notifying brigade members of an emergency. The weak siren atop the firehall can only be heard over a small area of the community, and even then only out-of-doors. Likewise the emergency phone system, in which fire phones in the department members' homes ring when the fire number is dialled, has proved inadequate. Few firemen are at home during the day to answer the phone and therefore lengthy delays can occur as wives or babysitters attempt to find the brigade members and advise them of the emergency. In this instance it appears the phones were only of value in alerting one brigade member.

What is needed is a louder siren, positioned in such a manner that it could be heard over the entire village area. As well, the council should investigate the possibility of assigning pocket pagers or similar devices, to brigade members as one way of alerting them to an emergency.

This municipality is fortunate that it has a group of men who are willing to offer their services for its protection. We believe they are dedicated, sincere, eager to learn and expand their knowledge on fire fighting techniques and willing to respond at all hours in cases of emergency. However, on the other hand, those qualities are worthless if these firemen cannot be reached when they are needed.

The citizens of the municipality are paying for fire protection. They deserve to receive better than what was offered Tuesday morning on the Bat Lake Road.

Queen's Park Report

John Eakins

The Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations has told the justice committee that the government will not appeal any decision a Supreme Court judge might make in a civil suit test case over the collapse of Re-Mor Investment Management Corporation and related companies. He said that if the government is found liable or negligent, it would immediately move to compensate investors represented in the suit. The case will be heard in the spring at the earliest.

Liberal MPP James Breithaupt (Kitchener) criticized the minister's eagerness to waive an appeal before a case has even gone to trial, saying it was possible that legal points in the decision which could be a benefit to either side might need to be clarified and would, therefore, warrant an appeal.

Acid rain

Liberal Leader Stuart Smith has accused the government of sitting on a report for more than a year to avoid a crackdown on acid rain producing sulphur dioxide emissions at INCO. The 100-page document, dated October 15th, 1980, was already near completion when the former Environment Minister obtained a Cabinet order in September 1980 to make INCO meet tougher emission levels in Sudbury by 1983. Smith asked, "Why has this report not been acted upon and why has it been kept secret when it states plainly that INCO could and should clean up to 750 - 800 tons a day by 1985 by the installation of a new furnace?"

Apparently, the report, commissioned by the Environment Ministry, says pollution abatement equipment is now available to drastically curb INCO's emissions below safe levels.

In the 1930's when the Federation of Ontario Naturalists had just been formed, the pressing issue of the day was protection of hawks and owls. Based partly on the misguided efforts of Jack Miner, hawks were frequently regarded as pests, and the sight of rotting carcasses of birds of prey along fencelines was a frequent occurrence. Through the repeated efforts of the early naturalists, first eagles and osprey and eventually all birds of prey received legal protection.

One loophole remains, forty years later, that still causes problems. A landowner can still trap or kill wildlife in defence of his property. A recent feature photo in the Kingston Whig-Standard showed a local chicken farmer who had done just that, killing a red-tailed hawk with a stick after it became entangled in wire mesh. Local naturalists were enraged particularly by the paper's treatment of the photo, which was captioned, "Prize Catch".

As one of the subsequent letters to the Editor pointed out, it was more likely that the hawk was pursuing a rat or mouse attracted to the poultry pen than the chicken inside. A study by the U.S. Department of Agriculture proved that 55% of the redtail's diet consists of rats and mice, with most of the rest made up of insects, squirrels, rabbits, and small birds. For the hawks of the open fields, such as the marsh hawk, rough-legged hawk, and kestrel this mixture of rodents and insects is typical, making these "living mousetraps" a natural friend of the farmer.

The past two decades have been tough ones for Ontario's birds of prey. The effects of persistent chemicals polluting the environment have taken a toll of some species. Habitat losses are affecting others. They need our protection, not our malice, if these impressive birds are to survive.

Occasionally a landowner may legitimately need to destroy one of these raptors to protect his livestock, but such a decision should be cause for regret, not for glory.

Strike Cost Small Business $3 Billion

By W. Roger Worth

Postmaster General André Ouellet doesn't really believe small business was hurt by this summer's 42-day postal strike.

In fact, during the strike, Ouellet informed people operating the nation's smaller companies they should find other ways to make a living if they have to rely on the Post Office.

Ouellet, of course, is way off base in his assessment, and a recent survey by the Canadian Federation of Independent Business on the effects of the strike, among 1,242 of its 62,000 members, proves how little understanding the Minister has of small business.

In cold, hard detailed language, the survey indicated:

- The cost to the country's small and medium-sized business sector was a whopping $3 billion, even using conservative estimates.

- More than two-million man-days of work were lost through temporary or permanent layoffs when orders didn't arrive or were tied up in the mail.

While the staggering cost in money, jobs and lost opportunities is important, people operating smaller companies were hard pressed to place a value on the anger, aggravation and frustration involved when they were without mail service.

One Federation member, for example, pointed out the extreme emotional pressure that results from wondering whether the business was going to survive if the strike was to continue.

Yet the Postmaster General seriously suggests little money has been lost and that postal workers should continue to have the right to strike, no matter how much havoc they create.

While the Post Office has now become a Crown Corporation, and thus might become more efficient, the government cannot allow the entrepreneurs who are providing a majority of the country's new jobs to be caught in such a bind again.

In fact, the damage done to smaller companies is so horrendous that the right to strike, particularly in the postal service, should be eliminated.

Its all over for HHSS Redmen

The football season came to an end for the HHSS Redmen Thursday as they were defeated by I.E. Weldon Secondary School of Lindsay 14-12. The game was a closely fought contest with the Redmen dominating play in the first half and the visitors making a strong comeback in the final portion of the game.

The loss gave the Redmen a respectable 4-2 record on the season.

the top picture Terry Crowe reaches in vain for a pass which sinks to the turf behind him. The second photo demonstrates the versatility of Redmen quarterback Tim Davies. He cuts down a I.E. Weldon player who is attempting to return a punt sent downfield by Tim's boot.

Chamber elects board

The Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce has a new board of directors.

The twelve were elected by the membership at an annual meeting held Wednesday evening at Wig-a-Mog Inn. The meeting capped a day of activity focusing on small business.

A number of seminars were held during the day at the Inn with guest speakers addressing the merchants on various matters from computers to government controls on small business. The day sessions were well attended.

During the evening dinner and meeting the members heard from guest speaker Michael Perley of the Canadian Coalition on Acid Rain. His group was formed following an acid rain conference held last year in Toronto. The group has been very active in lobbying United States elected officials in an effort to make them aware of the impact the emissions are having on the Canadian environment.

Perley reviewed the Coalition's efforts in the fight and noted that the organization is as concerned about Canadian sources of acid rain as it is about those south of the border.

The speaker suggested there was only limited benefits to be gained from neutralization of Canadian lakes through liming. He said the process did not restore the lakes to their full natural state, was too expensive and was physically impossible to carry out on all endangered Canadian lakes.

He said that while liming could restore the acidity balance in a lake, it did not solve the problems of heavy metals which are freed by the acidity and are deposited in the bottom of the lakes. Perley suggested the only answer to the problem lay in abatement and predicted there were only five years left before serious damage would be done to Canadian lakes.

New board

All the former members of the Board of Directors who agreed to stand for re-election were returned to office. They included Barb Bolin, Rhonda Elstone, James Orr, Keith Stephenson, Curtis Eastmure, Shawn Hagerman, Don Blakey, Ken Langdon and Dave Willis. They will be joined by newcomers Jack McGregor, Dennis Casey, George Schmid and ex officio directors, Ron Gambell representing County Council and Bruce Potter a representative of the Ministry of Industry and Tourism.

A dance followed the close of the formal portion of the evening.

Michael Perley was guest speaker

FROM THE CHAMBER

By Bob Stinson

Congratulations to Brad Robinson of Robinson's Store in Dorset for being selected as Highlander of the Year by the Chamber of Commerce.

The award is given annually by the Chamber to an individual who makes "An outstanding contribution of community services in the Highlands of Haliburton". Previous award winners have included Art Ward, Carole Finn, Len Salvatori, Gary Agnew and Roy Bates, all of whom contributed substantially in various ways, towards the betterment of our community.

Robinson's Store has become, over the years, a major tourist attraction for the Highlands and is an important stop for virtually all of the tour buses that pass through Dorset. The store was selected by Today Magazine as the "Best Country General Store" in Canada.

Brad Robinson, however, was not given this award simply because he is a successful businessman. It was given because Brad himself has provided such an excellent example of how to "Treat Them Royally". Everyone likes to shop in his two stores, (he also operates the Pine Emporium across the road) because he has made it an enjoyable experience. You might even go so far as to say it's fun. In addition, visitors shop with confidence because Robinson's insist that all their customers be satisfied ones.

It's been said that if you give them what they need you can make a living, but if you give them what they want, you'll make a million. Brad Robinson, in addition to being an asset to the community, should be well on his way.

Government intrusions

We have talked in this column several times lately of the over-reaction of governments, which, while trying to protect the rights of particular groups, tends to take away more and more of the rights of independent business men. The controversial Bill 7 dealing with human rights is a glaring example of this.

At our workshops held prior to the Chamber's annual meeting, we heard of many more. Representatives of the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Affairs and the Ministry of Industry and Tourism outlined many regulations and their effects, that small business operators must be aware of to avoid inadvertently breaking the law.

Most of these regulations were put in place because of pressure applied by those who felt victimized by some company or companies. To prevent further complaints we must now all live by sets of rules that, in many cases, create real hardships to the businesses involved.

It is becoming more and more apparent that we must become better organized to present our side of the story to government. The public now has so much protection from the businessmen of the community, that we have been left entirely vulnerable and unprotected from them.

The acid rain fighters

Guest speaker at the Chamber annual meeting was Michael Perley, Executive Director of the Canadian Coalition on Acid Rain. His presentation provided a very clear picture of not only what the problem is, but what his organization is doing to combat it. The only logical approach to a solution lies in stopping it at the source, and the Coalition has a full-time lobbyist in Washington working very hard against incredible odds to do this. They are also working on our own government to clean up its own back yard and has received considerably more co-operation than in the U.S.

The Coalition, by its nature, cannot rely on any government funding to carry out their important work. It is supported mainly through organizations which are also concerned with the acid rain problem. Let us hope that we care enough about the environment in the Highlands that support can be found for them within Haliburton County.

New executive to be formed

On Wednesday of this week the newly elected Board of Directors for the Chamber will meet for the first time and will be electing a new President and Vice President for the coming year, along with two other directors to serve on the executive. Jim McLean of Air Haliburton retired this year after one year as president and indicated that time constraints prevented him from seeking re-election. John Hogg of Mr. Fogg's also retired this year after serving a year as vice-president, two years as president and one year as past president.

Your new Board of Directors consists of Barbara Bolin, Rhonda Elstone, James Orr, Keith Stephenson, Curtis Eastmure, Shawn Hagerman, Don Blakey, Ken

Langdon, Dave Willis, Jack McGregor, Dennis Casey and George Schmid. These are the people who have pledged to direct the Chamber in the way the membership would desire and we urge you, the members, to keep them informed of what your feelings are. It's your Chamber - use it and support it.

Council learns $500 lesson

The municipality of Anson Hindon and Minden will pay the $500 costs assessed against it by the Ontario Municipal Board following a hearing into a rezoning in the Bat Lake area. The council agreed to pay the assessment at the October 28 meeting after word was received from the Sheriff in Lindsay that the charges could be higher if he had to make the trip to Minden to serve a writ on the municipality.

Reeve Lloyd Walker said the council had little choice except to pay the amount. He noted that the council had been attempting to strike a 50-50 deal with the individuals requesting the re-zoning but so far the municipality's invoices for $250 had been ignored.

The re-zoning had been requested by Joseph and Virginia Gentle to allow for the creation of a tent and trailer park near Bat Lake. The council had approved the rezoning application, however a group of area property owners objected and the matter went to the Ontario Municipal Board hearing. At the end of the hearing in early March, the chairman, Mr. Wilkins, assessed the $500 in costs against the municipality because he said the township application was premature and lacking in information about the environmental impact of the development.

Since the rezoning application had been made in the municipality's name, the $500 extra assessment became the township's responsibility.

Reeve Walker said the township should continue to attempt to recover half of the costs from the original applicants.

Failing that, Councillor Lyle McKnight said the council had gained $500 worth of knowledge and should know enough to get the financial responsibility straightened out before taking any matter before the Ontario Municipal Board again.

"It's an expensive lesson," added Councillor Ed Pergolas.

Hunter safety

The Ontario Provincial Police, Minden detachment, has issued a plea to hunters this week during the deer hunting season.

According to the local office, it is at this time of the year that hunters become lost in the bush, are shot at, wounded and killed by other hunters.

The authorities remind hunters to follow common-sense safety practices when in the bush. In particular, they remind hunters that a firearm should not be pointed at a target unless it has been positively identified as game.

A lot of people call life "The Survival of the Fittest". You know, a lot of people are right.

SENIOR LEAGUE

by Bert Harrison

Rev. John Burgess held the service in the Chapel Sunday night. He took his text from the third chapter of Acts - Peter healing the cripple. Mrs. Thompson played the organ - a very lively service.

Monday morning was fun and fitness. This is some thing, you should witness. Our ladies are really busy bless their little hearts. Ted Carr is also busy making flower carts.

Monday night we watched the movie — The office of the Prime Minister.

Tuesday morning Mrs. Rennick from the Allsaw Pentecostal Church took the service in the Chapel. Her topic was, "And God said I have loved thee with an everlasting love"...a real nice service.

Tuesday night was music night. Fred Ballard played some good old selections on both organ and piano. Thanks Fred.

Wednesday was Hawaiian day. The ladies with their funny grass skirts. The men with their fancy shirts. Then at noon our cook and staff put on a Hawaiian buffet lunch and they did it all so cheerfully. They were a jolly bunch. Then in the afternoon, down in the auditorium, the gang all got together. We had a lot of fun. We square danced, round danced the heel and toe. Everyone who watched it thought it a real good show.

I would, at this time, pay tribute to Millie Wood. Whatever she does she does it real good.

Although she is crippled and in a wheelchair, I think she does really more than her share.

She keeps track of all who have birthdays up here, and sends each a card as their birthdays appear. She makes lovely wreaths, she quilts and she sews. Never takes time for a little repose.

Thursday afternoon the ladies from Lutterworth Estates brought over a lunch that surely was great. Also a lovely birthday cake for those who had birthdays in October. We had a grand time and tried to keep sober.

Friday afternoon was sing song time here at the Crest. Mrs. Coburn was our welcome guest to lead us in one hour's song. Then Doris came and played the music really fine. We surely had a happy time.

Mrs. Oliver read a funny Hallowe'en poem about a witch, an owl and cat. We surely had a good laugh about that. Saturday night was Hallowe'en night as you all know. Down in the auditorium we had a real good show. The children all came marching in demanding treat or trick, when who comes flying through the door but the old witch on her broomstick.

I would thank all who helped decorate lounge, dining room and hall. All these decorations were enjoyed I'm sure by all. Now this is how we spent the last night of October. We all had a jolly time and managed to keep sober.

And, when you go to bed tonight. Please try hard to remember when you wake up in the morning you'll be starting in November.

Until next week.

Police still looking

With the opening of the new art gallery in Minden, the Ontario Provincial Police, Minden detachment, are showing an increased interest in things artistic.

In particular, the police are concerned about an Andre Lapine painting which was removed from the Minden Community Centre in 1976. The painting is part of an extensive collection which the municipality owns and which forms a major part of the art currently on display at the cultural centre.

The oil painting is 16 by 20 inches in size and is entitled "Tow Horses". The painting shows two horses pulling a large object upstream.

Anyone with information regarding this painting is asked to contact the Minden OPP office. Constable Barry Connelly is in charge of the investigation.

Brubachers leaving Minden after 25 years

Minden will be losing one of the most community-minded couples, almost 25 years after they first moved here.

Amos and Louella Brubacher will be leaving Minden in the middle of this month to take up residence in Cambridge. They arrived in Minden November 12, 1956.

Both have been very active members in the community, through their association with the Associated Gospel Church and other local organizations.

Reverend Brubacher started the church in the Minden area, holding the first services in the Scotch Line Road school house. The congregation grew and prospered and Reverend Brubacher was able to oversee the construction of a new church on Bobcaygeon Road North. The building continues today as the Minden Gospel Church.

Mrs. Brubacher was also very active through the church, organizing activities for women, such as a sewing circle which continues today. Funds raised from the efforts are used to support missionary work overseas.

Many rural residents of the area will know Mr. Brubacher as the mailman who delivered to the rural routes. He served in that capacity for 20 years, as well as acting as caretaker at the Minden Post Office and tending the colourful flower beds which line the walkways.

If there was one area outside of his church work, for which the Brubachers were well known, it was as horticulturalists. Both were avid gardeners who enjoyed raising bountiful harvests of flowers and vegetables. Their efforts won them the admiration of their friends and neighbours and often garnered prizes at the local fall fairs and horticultural shows.

This interest in flowers extended into the community, with Mr. Brubacher taking an active part in the Minden Horticultural Society. He is the group's president and the group has been responsible for many of the colourful displays which enhance various areas of the community including the riverbank, village entrances and, most recently, the new library-cultural centre.

From when he first arrived in Minden, Mr. Brubacher had a dream of a large floral park in the area behind the new library. He has envisioned walkways and paths leading through flowerbeds and around ponds, with a possible dyke system to help drain the wet area. While the idea may still be dreams, there have been discussions about the possibility of creating a nature trail in one area adjacent to the library. This could be the first step in his long held vision.

The popularity of the Brubachers in the community has been a result of their open and friendly attitude. Newcomers to the village could always expect a warm welcome from the couple. In addition to being a source of information on gardening, Mrs. Brubacher was often the person the other housewives would call for recipes or information on preparing certain dishes.

Mr. Brubacher's contribution to the community

The plaque on the front of their home 'The Busy B's' ably describes the Brubacher's contribution to this community during the past 25 years. They will be leaving shortly to take up residence in Cambridge.

extends beyond the church and horticultural society. For example, he voluntarily assisted with the interior finishing of the new library-cultural centre, was employed as school bus driver, visited with the elderly at Hyland Crest and was a religious instructor at Archie Stouffer Elementary School. He was also associated with the local Gideon Society.

One of the first tasks Mr. Brubacher undertook when he moved to the community was the creation of a special school for retarded children.

It was difficult in those days, to convince others of the need and then to raise the funds, but, as he put it "we didn't take 'no' for an answer." His persistence paid off and a school was established to serve the county. It continues today in the ARC Industry workshop which operates in Haliburton Village.

The couple will be leaving Minden for Cambridge and a Mennonite retirement community. The move to an apartment will certainly mean a change in lifestyle for the couple. Their home, located across the Bobcaygeon Road from the Gospel Church, has been a showcase in the community with well-kept lawns and flowerbeds and a thriving garden. However, their new home will also offer closer contact with their family and a number of friends, including Reverend Schmidt, another pastor of the Minden Gospel Church.

With their departure, the community will lose one of its most diligent couples. While no doubt everyone wishes them well, it is certain their presence will be missed.

Don't know if this is a record, but on Friday, I received my hometown paper which came out on Wednesday, I found in the mail a paper from the same place, dated October 21st.

There are many people in hospital and good wishes to these: Stewart Harrison, Anne Rockory, Irene Stewart, Toots Miles, Pearl Cowen and Judy Martin.

Some ladies from Minden attended the Victoria East District Craft Day at Fenelon Falls United Church and these were Mary Cox, Rheta Brown, Annie Kernohan, Yvonne Beauceage, Nancy Moore and Carrie Jones. We hear they found some new ideas for Christmas gifts there, as well as enjoying afternoon tea and visit with other branch members.

Friendship is a chain of gold, Shaped in God's all perfect mold, Each link a smile, a laugh, a tear, A grip of the hand, a word of cheer, As steadfast as the ages roll Binding closer soul to soul. No matter how far or heavy the load, Sweet is the journey on friendship's road.

Club 35 news

The delighted winner of a beautiful hand crocheted afghan and cushion was Lorraine King of Minden. The draw took place at the regular Euchre night of Club 35. Second prize, a water purifier was won by Mrs. Irene Barraclough of Toronto and the consolation prize was claimed by Mr. Bill Watson of Hall's Lake.

Mrs. Luther Wilson of Minden made and donated the afghan set. The proceeds from the sale of tickets is being used to renovate the basement of the Club. For the past few months members have spent their time and talents on this project and the results are very pleasing to the eye. Members are very grateful to Luther Wilson and his volunteer crew.

Every Monday night is Euchre night, a time of fun and fellowship.

Upcoming events planned at the Club include pot luck suppers and the New Year's Eve party.

Lines from Lutterworth by Jean Lacey

Hi! Did everyone get over Hallowe'en alright? No damages? Hope not. From what I hear it was a quiet night, but then I don't hear all that much news anyway.

It sure has been lovely these past few days, it's our Indian summer after our squaw winter.

The Santa Claus parade was beautiful but I think they are rushing the season. We won't feel like Christmas when it gets here.

Bill and Jean Porter with sons Steve and Eddy were up from Oshawa to visit with Bill's mother (Mrs. Lil Porter) over the weekend. Also visiting with Mrs. Porter was her daughter Mrs. Norma Melenchuk from Oshawa.

Sorry to hear of the passing of Mr. Bruce Thompson of Bowmanville. He was Mr. Frank Bowron's son-in-law. Our prayers and sympathies are with the family.

Ken, Jeanne and Heather Bowron with Bert and Ada Bowron spent Monday in Bowmanville with the family.

Some of the family were up visiting on the weekend, Jim and Jo Oatman with Joshua and Crystal from Shelburne.

Bill Roodenburg with daughter, Cindy, arrived home after spending two wonderful weeks in Holland visiting with friends and relatives.

Just heard of the wonderful arrival of our new grandson, Darren Joseph Lacey. Can't wait to go to see him. He is our tenth grandchild.

Sorry to hear that Mr. and Mrs. Brubacher are leaving us. They sure have done a lot for the community and will be sorely missed.

A good time was had by all last Wednesday, when the district Librarians met in the new Library. After a lovely lunch was served, we had the Art Gallery opened to us and Dr. Jamieson very kindly explained all the paintings to us. Thanks to Jeanne Sears, Pearl Durant, Ada Lewis and Bev Woods.

the Art in the Gallery come alive.

We hear that Louella and Amos Brubacher are soon to leave our village, we will miss them both, and wish them 'God Speed'.

We noticed the Junior Horticultural Members with Mr. Brubacher very busily working on the flower beds on the north river bank. Wonder if they were planting bulbs?

Here's the recipe you asked for J.L. 1/2 cup sugar, 1/4 cup cocoa, 1/2 cup marg., 2 eggs beaten lightly. Cook in top of double boiler until thick. Remove from heat and

Many times the cuffs on jeans will turn up after they have been washed. To correct this, affix a wide strip of iron-on mending material (the kind used for patching) to the inside of the cuffs. You will have no more problems with cuffs turning up.
